One of the worst features among the scenes of yesterday was the disposition among both white and colored stragglers to plunder and rob the dead Several instances of this kind were noticed but could not be prevented by McClelland, who alone was authorized to take charge of valuables found Owing to the long extent of the shore many of the bodies could not be reached by him until they had been rifled and the guilty parties had escaped Hiram Smith (colored) [illegible] that he was present and witnessed the loss of the life boat As soon as the boat was lowered to the main deck the colored men took possession of her by force, and no threats or persuasions of the officers could prevent them The boat was heaped full of baggage and men and he saw a man cut the bow rope when the boat fell with such force as to tear out the stern because of the davit holding at that end and all in her sunk."

EXPLOITS OF A BOGUS LORD

[illegible]

The origin and early career of the swindler Lord Gordon Gordon [illegible] a perplexing mystery to New Yorkers [illegible] is said to be the illegitimate son of the Rev Dr Hussey rector of Hayes Kent England The exact year of his birth is not known but in 1843 he was in the employ of a firm of London warehousemen He robbed his employers but they allowed him to go without prosecution He was known at the time by the name of John Hamilton He next appeared as a schoolmaster and subsequently as a swell in Yeovil Somersetshire Leaving his bills in Yeovil unpaid he became religious aspired to the ministry and found an engagement as a curate of a church in the suburbs of London.

[illegible] preaching did not agree with Mr Hamilton and he abandoned it for an easier and more distinguished career The Rev John Hamilton developed into the Hon Herbert Hamilton honorable being a prefix borne by the younger sons of the English nobility The Hon H Hamilton took up his residence at Surbiton Surrey where he ingratiated himself into the acquaintance of a Mr Bird and family Mr Bird was one of those commoners whose chief ambition is to be recognized by the titled aristocracy The Hon Herbert Hamilton was requested to consider himself at home in the Bird Mansion which he did He also borrowed large sums of money from Mr Bird and even condescended to keep up his associations with the family after developing into a full blown Lord In 1867 the Hon Herbert Hamilton assumed the title of Lord Glencairn explaining to his friends that it was his mother's name, and that he had succeeded to her vast estate and peerage He rented a room at 56 Lincoln's Inn Fields London introducing himself to a firm of solicitors Howard Paddison & Co as the Hon H Glencairn, the legitimate heir to the Glencairn estates at the same time depositing with them a number of strong boxes which bore in gold the name

ABOUT HIS LORD OFFICIALS

And which were said to contain the family plate, jewels and deeds To have charge of the estates of a Lord is a fortune to an English solicitor and Paddison & Co a highly respectable firm were ready to do business for the wealthy and inexperienced heir In the summers of 1868 and 1869 Lord Glencairn spent several months at Glenisla Scotland where he rented a shooting box There he became acquainted with the Rev J D Simpson of the Free Church to whom he stated that he had a place in Lanarkshire and another in Ayrshire He also hinted that he had property at Northampton in England In September 1869 the Rev Mr Simpson accompanied the Lord to Edinburgh where he introduced him to the firm of Marshall & Sons silversmiths His Lordship patronized this firm to the extent of about $1,500 for which he gave his note He called himself cousin to the late Marquis of Hastings, a relative of the Hamilton an intimate of the Prince of Wales, and appeared from his conversation to be upon the most friendly terms with more than half the great families of England He was an exemplary church member, and a model of morality In January 1870 his Lordship went to London and was introduced by Mr Paddison to Keller & Co, diamond merchants Hatton Garden as Lord Glencairn of Auchentieth Perthshire

SWINDLING TRADESMEN

The bogus nobleman made heavy purchases and referred Keller & Co to the Marshalls of Edinburgh The latter on being notified of the reference, became suspicious and telegraphed to Keller to detain his lordship Mr Smith one of the partners of Keller & Co proceeded to London and had an interview with M Keller Both parties concluded that they had been swindled Mr Smith then visited Mr Paddison and told him what he suspected The solicitor treated the silversmith rather cavalierly and referred him to Lord Glencairn who was writing in an adjoining room very handsomely furnished which the pretended peer called his audience chamber Glencairn referred Smith back to Paddison who gave Mr Smith a written guarantee for the payment of the money due representing that the bill would be settled by the 25th of March

At this time Glencairn was keeping an account with the City of Glasgow Bank Dundee where he said that his English seat was Millbury Park, Northamptonshire and [illegible]

HIS INCOME $250 000 A YEAR

He at first deposited large sums of money and then endeavored to overdraw his account He also obtained credit and incurred debts with a number of tradesmen in Edinburgh and London He got $25 000 from his solicitor or Paddison on the representation that he had lost $150,000 in a transaction with the late Marquis of Hastings. He obtained about $3 000 worth of jewelry from Keller & Co and $1 000 worth from Grant & Peak [illegible] Gerrard street Soho London besides the plate from the Messrs Marshall & Co In March, 1867 he bade farewell to his friend Mr Bird, of Surbiton Surrey repaying him for the money lent him with a bogus check on the old bank of Rugby signed "H Glencairn" His lordship then disappeared from English society and reappeared in September 1871 in Minnesota as Gordon Gordon a Scottish nobleman with an income of $1 500 000 a year.

HIS TRANSACTIONS

With the Northern Pacific road at 14 to $15 000 summer excursion at the expense of that Company have been already narrated But his victims have not always been rich firms and rich corporations He induced W H Tuttle who owned 150 acres of land at Pelican Rapids with a fine water power to unite with him in a plan for the erection of a city to be called Loomis Gordon engaged to furnish the funds for building a [illegible] mill [illegible] and other works and he authorized Tuttle who was to give him half his land to cut trees for the land of [illegible] [illegible] Tuttle employed a surveyor to stake it the town hired laborers and [illegible] work Gordon meanwhile left the neighborhood The land from which trees were being cut turned out to be the property of the railroad company and Tuttle was ruined The later portion of this interesting swindler's history is well known At St Paul in December 1871 he introduced himself to the family of Col Patten of Philadelphia The Minnesotians becoming suspicious of his pretensions his Lordship removed himself and title to New York, where the glamour of his nobility deceived the Democratic Horace Greeley and even such sharp-witted men as Gould and Scott

Gordon is probably as insecure in Manitoba as he would be on this side [illegible] is liable to be at any moment arrested and carried to England to be tried for his swindles perpetrated there [illegible]

THE BINGHAMTON SMALL BOY.--A youth of ten years residing at Binghamton played so long on a recent afternoon that he did not get home until supper was over and consequently was told that he could have nothing to eat Casting one look behind he started for the door at the same time remarking, Mother I'm going to die and when I'm dead I want the doctor to cut me open and look at my stomach The mother greatly alarmed inquired what he meant when he replied I want them to know that I died of starvation A mayor of proceedings was ordered and the boy turned from his evil intentions to the supper table

The young Englishman who falls heir to an estate in the old country, turns up this time at Port Townsend and his name is H W Allen keeper of a small saloon at that place and he has sold out and gone home to enjoy himself.

On Monday of last week a kerosene lamp exploded at the residence of Mr Frank Orselli, at Walla Walla, setting fire to the clothes of two little girls who were in the room at the time One of them escaped without injury The other Mr Orselli's oldest daughter, was burned on one side from head to foot, and her condition is such as to leave but slight hope of recovery

A little son of Mr Mark Jones, of Swantown aged about nine years met with a serious accident this forenoon The little fellow had been to Olympia selling vegetables and was returning home with his horse and cart By some accident he was thrown from his seat to the ground, and the wheels of the cart passed over both legs, near the thigh, breaking one and severely bruising the other

Work on the Penitentiary at Steilacoom is progressing finely. About fifteen men, stone cutters and masons, are daily at work The outside wall has attained a height of fifteen feet, and the door and window cases for the ground story are fitted in Inside this wall are [illegible] clean cells, with an alley between the cells and the wall, the doors to the cells are of checkered iron, that the guards pacing up and down the corridor may at all times have their eyes on the prisoners

The Statesman says At a moderate estimate Walla Walla valley has half a million bushels of grain for shipment abroad, and, estimating the surplus products of all descriptions one million bushels is within bounds. This immense surplus [illegible] to [illegible] the market, and, coupled with a lack of facilities for moving the crop, wheat is dull at 40 cents a bushel To [illegible] this surplus grain to the river is out of the question, and so, for the present, or at least until the railroad is complete the prospect for our farmers is rather gloomy

The Olympia Courier of Tuesday says A telegram was received yesterday by a gentleman in Olympia, from Gov Salomon, in San Francisco, informing him that the organization of the Washington Mining and Transportation Company had been fully completed and that 783 acres of coal land near Tenino, have been bought and paid for by them Also that one or more members of the Company would leave for Olympia next Saturday, August 16th, authorized to negotiate with the people of Olympia in relation to their contemplated railroad from the mine to that place and if the people of Olympia do as well by this company as promised the N P R R Co the road will be in running order in twelve months

The Walla Walla Union of the 9th says On last Wednesday evening at about half past 9 o'clock a hay stack belonging to Mr W M Shelton, living at the foot of the mountains, was discovered to be on fire All attempts to extinguish the flames were unavailing and the fire rapidly spread to the other stacks of hay and consumed them together with the granary and about sixty bushels of wheat The total loss consisting of this wheat the granary and thirty tons of hay will reach $500 As there had been no fire near the place where the fire originated, and as Mr Shelton had been near the stacks where the fire started only a few minutes before the alarm was given he is driven to the conclusion that it was the work of an incendiary

Rather a serious affray took place on the line of the railroad about three miles back of Steilacoom on Friday of last week It appears that the time-keeper of the different gangs had some trouble with one of the Chinamen [illegible] on the road, and talked to the Mongolian in a style which John did not appreciate, whereupon the Chinaman knocked his "boss" down and beat him severely This happened on Thursday. Friday morning the time-keeper accompanied by several white employes of the road, made a raid on the Chinese camp with pistols and clubs causing several of the Mooneyes to bite the dust The first report received was that five of the Chinamen were killed but it was afterward ascertained that the only damage done was in sixteen of them receiving severe injuries

The Lewiston Signal August 2d says Gen J P C Shanks and Governor Bennett returned on Wednesday evening from Hangman Creek whither they had been to talk with the Indians They had first intended to go as far as the Coeur d'Alene Mission but on meeting the Indians at Hangman, they held their council at that point That paper was not made fully aware of all that transpired but presents the following information A contract was entered into for furnishing agricultural implements to the Indians and a new boundary designated for their reservation The Spokane river will hereafter be the northern line and a high ridge of mountains the southern The limits of the reservation have not been reduced to any extent The Indians would not receive anything in the shape of clothing or other household auxiliaries of civilization, but they wanted plows, wagons, and farming implements generally The General and Governor were at Lapwai during the latter part of the week and visited many points on the reservation The Signal says the gentlemen were to go below on Sunday's steamer, although it was understood that they would accompany Gen Milroy and Agent Simms to Kettle Falls where a grand council will be held about the middle of this month

WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 13, 1873.

THE TIME FOR ACTION.

There is but two weeks time between now and the day recommended by the Republican State Central Committee for the holding of the primaries. At present the matter appears to elicit no interest whatever. With the exception of a few politicians nobody pays any more attention to the subject than if the election to be held in October were of no importance. So it is likely to go on till the day for the primary [illegible] the few who will have had the sole management of the matter up to that time, will go through the form of choosing delegates to the County Conventions, and will of [illegible] send up such delegates as will carry out their personal wishes. In doing so, they will do only what others would do under similar circumstances, and what might be expected. The conventions so got up will in all probability appoint delegates to the State Convention who will not be the choice of the people. Whose fault will it be? The few who take an interest in the matter are only a part of the mass of people, and will judge of what the whole community want only by their own wishes. If all citizens came out and took part in the primary elections the result would be, under ordinary circumstances, the choice of delegations with whom the people would be satisfied. That such delegations are not selected is more the fault of those who stay away from the primaries than of those who manage them, excepting always those cases in which corrupt and unfair means are used to override the will of the majority. They have small right to complain of the management of their political affairs, who [illegible] neglect to exercise their right to have a part—not infrequently a decisive part—in that management. If you leave others to attend to your business, and allow them the widest possible discretion as to the manner in which it shall be conducted, you should not complain if the business is managed very differently from the way you think it should be.

It is not a sufficient answer to this to say that the right to cast a vote at the election enables the citizen to correct the errors of the parties and nominating conventions, by voting down the candidate that is put up in the interest of the politicians instead of the people. Practically this right amounts to exactly nothing. The politics of the country is under the control of two great rival parties. There is little at [illegible] between them now, besides the question who shall have the offices; [illegible] relations and the [illegible] for mutual personal advancement [illegible] of each party [illegible] to keep their organizations tolerably compact, and, except in mostly local elections, the candidates of one or the other are almost invariably elected, no matter what side organizations and independent movements are set on foot to defeat them. But these party candidates are selected in the [illegible] and the citizen who desires to vote against the candidates that have been chosen by a few who run the party machinery, is compelled to go outside both parties and throw away his vote on some person who has no chance of election. The exercise of the [illegible] of the citizen to give his vote for the person best qualified in all respects for the office, is thus rendered a [illegible] which might as well be [illegible] The place where the [illegible] and potential [illegible] the politics of the [illegible] is the primary. All the subsequent steps to the final counting of ballots is pretty much a matter of routine. The primaries [illegible] candidates [illegible] and that, after all, is the main [illegible] It matters less who a candidate is [illegible] within the range of morality and decency—than what he is in his associations, sympathies, social [illegible]

JUDGE LAWRENCE'S DEFEAT.

It has been a good while since the election for Supreme Judge in Illinois, at [illegible] defeated a candidate of [illegible] but the public, it appears, has only now been informed truthfully of the [illegible] which led to the [illegible] The story that has [illegible] and so far as we know, generally accepted, that Judge Lawrence offended the farmers by a decision from the supreme bench upon the statute to [illegible] of freight on the railways, his [illegible] before the Court being in favor of the railway company. For this decision, which was generally [illegible] to be sound law, it has been said, the farmers determined to defeat his re-election, and to place in his seat a man pledged to decide the question the other way. That such action on the part of the farmers should be condemned and regarded as subversive of the principles of Republican government, was natural. Out of this judicial election, therefore, [illegible] successful—and to some extent because it was successful [illegible] a sentiment adverse to the farmers' movement in the minds of many truthful conservative persons. A movement, whose first triumph was virtually a packing of the highest court of a State for the purpose of [illegible] decision, could not find favor with people who love law and order, and desire the stability of our institutions.

It [illegible] when the whole truth is told, that the [illegible] have been misrepresented at home and misunderstood abroad. Judge Lawrence's decision in the railway case had nothing to do with the nomination of the farmers' candidate. Nor was Judge Lawrence himself the regular nominee of any party. When he was elected before it was as a people's candidate, and not as a party nominee; and when his term was about to expire the farmers themselves had no thought of any person for his place. But just before the usual time for the calling of the nominating conventions some friends of Judge Lawrence got up a petition and circulated it among the members of the bar, asking him to become a candidate for re-election. No person except the lawyers was permitted to sign it, and of these there were two hundred and fifty-six signatures when the paper was presented to the Judge. The farmers' movement against the railways was just then becoming very prominent, and they naturally took this action of the bar as indicating a disposition to exclude them from any participation in the selection of a Supreme Judge, a matter in which they correctly thought themselves as vitally concerned as the lawyers.

At a regular meeting of the Bureau County Farmers' Association Mr. John H. Bryant, a prominent farmer and a leader in their organizations, introduced a resolution declaring the interest of the people at large in the judicial election, which was adopted, and it was agreed to call a people's convention to nominate a Judge. This was done, the convention being open to all classes. Judge Lawrence had not yet replied to the lawyers' request, and it was generally understood that he would be the nominee of the people's convention, as he had been before. Just at this juncture, however, he wrote his response to the bar accepting their nomination, and ridiculing the people's convention. The convention of course would not nominate him after that. They nominated Judge Craig, a successful practitioner at the bar, exacting no pledges of any kind from him in regard to his decisions of railway or other questions; and having put their hands to the plow they did not look back till Craig was seated on the Supreme bench, and Judge Lawrence was made to feel the power of the people, whom he had wantonly insulted in return for the honors they had bestowed upon him. They do not deny that Lawrence was a pure man and a good Judge, though he was a sort of closet student, and somewhat impracticable in many of his notions; but they were not disposed to be treated with contempt by him, or suffer indignities at his hands. They served him right.

THE PERSIAN SHOW.

The Duc de Broglie, who has charge of the important business of entertaining the Shah of Persia at the French Capital has done his part so gracefully to the satisfaction of his guest that that illustrious pagan has resolved to quarter himself and his numerous retinue upon France for a period considerably longer than he at first intended. Correspondents note that the Shah has dined in the Galerie des Glaces, in the central block of the imperial palace, one of the [illegible] magnificent banquet halls of the [illegible] Louis XIV, and the very hall in which that monarch received a Persian Embassador 170 years ago. Marshal MacMahon, or rather President MacMahon, meets the royal heathen in this hall and exchanges commonplaces with him in the best style of courtly inanity, and the Shah believes himself a great show—which he is. It is not stated whether the Imperial President of Republican France has called the attention of the "King of Kings" to the stories put in circulation at the time to the effect that the Persian Embassy to the court of Louis XIV was a gigantic fraud and hoax got up by a cunning French woman to tickle the vanity of the gorgeous Louis; and that in this respect also there is a striking coincidence between that event and this, as many persons think this pagan [illegible] is [illegible] a show sent out by Baron Reuter as an advertisement while the [illegible] Shah stays at home and eats dirt in his own capitol.

WATER AND OIL.

The movement for the formation of a new political party in the Western States seems likely to fall through before the proposed organization gets out of its swaddling clothes. The "Liberal" and disaffected Republicans are mostly protectionists, while many of the Democratic promoters of the movement are free traders, and believe that the question of free trade and protection is paramount to all others. These latter insist that the new party must go before the country on a free-trade platform; but their allies from the other side of the house insist that while the question is of great importance it is one upon which it will always be impossible to unite a national party, and that it should be remanded to Congress for adjustment, after the plan of the Baltimore-Greeley Convention, and that the new party should come before the people with the single idea of freedom from corporation rule, and insist upon this, together with the faithful carrying out of the pledges given by other parties, in regard to honesty and economy in the administration of public affairs, and in the civil service reform. And here the agitators of the new party scheme are irreconcilable. The incompatibles persistently refuse to coalesce, even with the prospect of nice places, with nice salaries as an inducement.

A [illegible] EXCURSION.

SUMMIT CALAPOOIA MOUNTAINS,
August 12, 1873.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Yesterday a party of [illegible] boarded the southbound train with numerous camping utensils and quantities of provisions and arrived at this place about 5 o'clock P. M. The party [illegible] of [illegible] persons. Among them, and giving dignity to the expedition—is Rev. P. S. Knight, Rev. W. R. Stewart, and Rev. L. A. Powell, of Salem, with Rev. J. D. Lacey, of Oregon City. The remainder of the company are equally notable, of course, but, unfortunately, have no titles that could be conveyed [illegible] to their names.

You may confidently expect to receive communications from this quarter with accounts of [illegible] slaughter of game, and fearful thinning of grouse in the immediate neighborhood of the nearest hen-roost. More anon.

MAYFLOWER MOSS.

The St. Paul Press has this, which is well said:

The apprehension which is felt by the more intelligent granger of the disastrous consequences to the Order which will ensue from allowing it to be made the battle-ground of rival cliques of politicians, is a just and reasonable one. A menagerie of hungry hyenas, wildcats, tigers and wolves, sent upon a foraging expedition into a sheep-fold, would not make a quicker meal of a flock of Southdowns than the politicians will of the Granges if the Granges surrender themselves to their influence.

Dispatches received in Paris on the 7th inst., from Vienna state that at the recent interview between the Count de Paris and the Count de Chambord the former announced his recognition of Chambord as the head of the house and the only legitimate monarch of France.

Insure against Loss by Fire in the

Phoenix of Hartford,

BECAUSE:

FIRST—IT HAS COMPLIED FULLY WITH THE Oregon State Law.

SECOND—Its contracts in Oregon are backed, under a re-insurance contract, by its own and the united [illegible] of the Home Ins. Co. of New York and the North British and Mercantile Ins. Company of London, [illegible] over $20,000,000 in gold, offering the best security of any Fire Insurance Company or Association in the world.

THIRD—It can carry large risks, as its policies are re-insured by the above mentioned Companies, so that the PHOENIX alone can carry the same line that all three companies would take separately.

FOURTH—It requires but one set of papers in case of loss, thus giving the security of three Companies without the trouble of dealing with separate Corporations.

On these solid merits, viz: Capacity to carry the largest risks, the amplest possible security, the simplest adjustment in case of loss, and the prompt and equitable payment of all just claims,

The Phoenix Insurance Company solicits your Patronage.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUGUST

CITY.

Insurance Adjusters.—At no time in the history of this city has Portland been honored with the presence of so many representatives of the several Insurance companies as at the present. Their presence here is explained by the recent calamitous fire and their visit is purely one of business—the adjustment and settlement of claims preferred by losers against the several companies. The following gentlemen have been sent by the several insurance companies at San Francisco to adjust losses, and are now in the city:

C. V. D. Hubbard, Imperial, London Assurance and Northern.

H. Bigelow, Home Mutual and State Investment.

Henry Smith, Liverpool and London and Globe.

L. L. Brownwell, Phœnix, Home of New York and North British.

Mr. Hamilton, Commercial Union and Hamburg Bremen.

Mr. Rayley, Union.

George F. Grant, resident Manager of the Oregon Branch of the Fireman's Fund, will adjust all losses sustained by that company.

The Benefit Concert.—Arrangements for the holding of a grand vocal and instrumental concert, the proceeds of which are to be donated to the Relief Fund, are being rapidly made and everything is progressing under the most flattering auspices. Last evening a grand vocal rehearsal was held at the music store of W. K. Badger. This evening the orchestra will hold a rehearsal at the Progress Club rooms. The orchestra will be composed of the following persons: S. Harris, violin; J. H. Itsch and H. Thielsen, piano; George L. DeProns, organ; C. W. Lowe, first cornet; Mr. Frank, violin; J. H. Brenner, violin; E. Fink, flute; R. Yost, double bass; M. Peterson, second cornet; C. Hegele, double bass; Mr. Zick, baritone. About thirty voices are expected to take part in the chorus, embracing all of the leading amateur vocalists of the city. Mr J. B. Wyatt will have charge of the vocal part of the entertainment, and Mr. S. Harris will be leader of the orchestra.

Pardoned.—A dispatch was received yesterday by J. McCraken & Co., of this city, from Attorney General Geo. H. Williams, to the effect that Capt. Whyte, of the English ship Forward, has been pardoned. It will be recollected that Capt. Whyte was arrested some time ago and examined before U. S. Commissioner R. Wilcox, on the charge of violating the passenger act, in bringing to this port from Hongkong more Chinamen than the capacity of the vessel would permit, allowing fourteen cubic feet to each passenger. The Commissioner held the defendant to appear before the United States grand jury, to answer the charge. In the meantime, a recommendation for pardon was forwarded to Washington with the result above stated.

Nonpareil Lodge.—The hall of the Nonpareil Lodge I. O. G. T., at the corner of Madison and First streets, having been destroyed by the late fire, the members of that Lodge have made arrangements with Mr. J. B. Keller for the erection of a new hall. The Good Templar's Hall was not available for the reason that the building could not be obtained on evenings when it would be desirable to hold meetings. Until such time as the new hall is completed, the Lodge will hold its meetings in the office of Justice R. W. Ryan, at the corner of Alder and Front streets.

To Valparaiso.—The schooner Oregonian arrived at San Francisco some time ago, from Coos Bay. Among the first things which Capt. Houdlett did after arriving at San Francisco, was to unite himself in matrimony with one of the fair and accomplished daughters of that city. Soon after the Oregonian sailed for Valparaiso, carrying away on a bridal tour the Captain and his happy bride. Capt. Houdlett is well known here. He carries with him the best wishes of his numerous friends.

B Street Improvement.—Notice will be given to-morrow to the owners of property fronting or abutting upon that part of B street lying between North Thirteenth and the western boundary of the city, as well as those liable for a proportionate share of improving the intersections of that street with other cross streets, that their respective assessments for such improvements will be due fifteen days from the date of the notice.

Gratuitous Distribution.—A large number of lithographed views of Portland, showing the entire city and the "burnt district," were received a few days ago by Mr. Geo. F. Grant, Manager of the Fireman's Fund. These views are gratuitously distributed. Persons calling at the office on Stark street can procure one of the lithographed maps.

Officiated.—The Astorian of the 12th says: "Bishop Morris officiated at Grace Church in this city Sunday forenoon and evening. He will not proceed to Shoalwater Bay, as originally intended, but Rev. Mr. Hyland will go instead, and Rev. Mr. Burton will fill the pulpit at Grace Church, in Mr. Hyland's absence, next Sunday.

Court at Astoria.—Judge Upton went down the river to Astoria on Monday, to hold the regular term of Circuit Court for Clatsop county. Court convened at that place yesterday morning, and will probably continue through the present week. As usual, a number of Portland attorneys are in attendance at the bar.

Portlanders at Astoria.—The Astorian notes the arrival at that place of the following Portlanders: C. W. Burrage, Wm. Strong, W. W. Page, W. W. Thayer, W. W. Upton and lady, G. H. Durham, H. Y. Thompson, J. N. Dolph and family, Major H. M. Robert, U. S. A., M. A. Smith, A. Hackney.

Territorial Penitentiary.—The Oregon Iron Works have the contract for the iron work to be used in connection with the Territorial Penitentiary now being built at Steilacoom. A large force of men are engaged in making cells, doors and balconies, and turning off other portions of the work.

No Court.—On Monday morning the U. S. Circuit Court met, but in consequence of the absence of Judge M. P. Deady, court was adjourned by the Marshal until next Monday, 18th inst. Yesterday morning the U. S. District Court convened, but was adjourned until the 19th inst.

Repairing.—The locomotive "John H. Couch," having met with considerable rough usage, has been hauled off for repairs. She is now undergoing an overhauling at the west side depot. In the meantime the locomotive "Multnomah" is doing service in drawing the gravel train.

Caulking.—A number of workmen are engaged at present in caulking a number of scows on the east side of the river, which have been finished. The barges, which will be used in connection with the new dredger, are being recaulked and put in a condition to render service.

Meeting of Relief Committee.—A meeting will be held at Ladd & Tilton's bank on Friday evening by the Relief Committee. Business of importance will be transacted, and a full attendance is desired. All the sub-committees are requested to be present.

On the Way Here.—The barkentine Webfoot, Capt. Gage, sailed from San Francisco for this port on the 7th inst., with a full assorted cargo. The bark Superior sailed on the same day for Portland. Both will be due here in a few days.

Meeting of Sufferers.—An adjourned meeting of the sufferers will be held this evening at the Court House. Several reports of committees previously appointed will be received. A general attendance is desired.

Adjourned.—The County Court adjourned on last Friday afternoon for the term, after a short term. But little county business was transacted, besides the auditing of the usual complement of claims.

Billy Marshal has been appointed City Marshal of La Grande. It was tendered to M. P. [illegible], but he declined.

[illegible]

LOCAL BREVITIES.

[illegible] in the markets.

The "Burnt District" is rapidly "Phoenixing."

The new dredger is lying opposite Smith's mill.

An unusual number of Californians in the city at present.

The Jane A. Falkinburg is discharging cargo at Flanders' wharf.

Several merchants have resumed business in the burnt district.

A new spark catcher has been placed on the smoke stack of the Gov. Grover.

Anders & Rowe sent a big lot of fruits to [illegible] on the steamer Gussie Telfair.

The bark Northumbria, from this port, arrived at Queenstown on the 24th ult.

Professor Fowler, who was here a few weeks since, will be at Jacksonville next Monday.

The brig Orient is on the way to this port from San Francisco, and may be expected next Thursday.

The musicians who will take part in the coming grand concert are rehearsing at the Progress Club rooms.

Mr. W. Aschenheim, grocer and fruit dealer, has just received a choice lot of delicious Oregon peaches—the first of the season.

Several Portlanders visited Vancouver on Monday. They saw sights after their return [illegible], having lost considerable rest.

A dispatch was received from San Francisco yesterday to the effect that 128 immigrants had taken passage on the steamer now due here.

The call for the Oregonian was unprecedented. An edition of more than a thousand extra copies of last week's issue was exhausted within 30 hours after publication.

The moonlight excursion given under the auspices of the Vancouver Library Association on the steamer Oneatta to this city, on Monday evening, was a very pleasant affair.

An exchange is guilty of the following: "At an Oregon baby show a disappointed mother snapped a revolver under the nose of one of the judges, and her husband is after the other two." That proposition is too extremely thin for the average Oregon reader.

COMMITTEE ON PLAN OF ACTION.

The Committee on Plan of Action, appointed by the meeting of sufferers by the late fire assembled in the parlor of Ladd & Tilton's bank yesterday at 11 A. M.

Present, L. F. Grover, W. S. Ladd, C. M. Carter, Eugene Semple and Geo. L. Curry. Absent, J. N Dolph.

On motion of Mr. Grover, Mr. Curry was chosen Chairman, and on motion of Mr. Ladd Mr. Semple was chosen Secretary.

The members of the Committee on Finance of the same meeting, several of whom were present, were invited to join in the discussion.

The different questions submitted to the committee were considered at length by those present, and the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That this Committee as a plan of action recommend the persons holding property in the burnt district to assemble and appoint a committee to visit San Francisco or the East and ascertain the feasibility of negotiating long loans on real estate at reasonable interest for the purpose of rebuilding the burnt district with permanent buildings. That said committee be composed of leading land owners in the burnt district, to be sustained by letters from the Governor of the State and the banks and leading business men of the city of Portland.

PERSONAL.

His Excellency, Governor Grover, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon.

Prof. Gillman, President of the University of California, arrived in the city last evening overland from San Francisco.

Philip Ritz, Esq., of Walla Walla, one of the Government Commissioners to examine the North Pacific Railway, arrived in the city yesterday evening. The other Commissioners are R. B. Thompson, Esq., of this city, and Mr. Sturgis, who is expected to arrive by the incoming steamer. They will go over the road north of Kalama in a day or two.

By the evening train yesterday, there arrived a number of prominent gentlemen connected with the express and telegraph companies. Among the number we note the names of S. D. Brastow, Assistant Superintendent of Wells Fargo & Co., John J. Valentine, General Superintendent of the same company; Jos. Sheppard, Superintendent of the United States Express Company; and James Gamble, Superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

AMUSEMENTS.

Reed's Panorama of the Great Northwest will be on exhibition at the Masonic Hall tomorrow evening. This is one of the finest works of the panoramic art ever exhibited on the coast. It comprises a most faithful and complete representation of the unrivaled scenery of Oregon, California and Washington Territory, in thirty-two large views. Wherever exhibited the panorama has won the highest encomiums from the press and met with the most flattering public commendation. We shall confidently expect an overwhelming house on the occasion of the first exhibition of Reed's Panorama.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

There is no need to say fire in order to awaken up our people to the necessity of providing against its occurrence, or of supplying themselves with that which, of all things, is best to prevent its spread. All our readers are referred to the advertisement of the Babcock Fire Extinguisher, and are advised to secure one as soon as possible.

Hurgren & Shindler have reopened in their former warehouse, the Lutheran Church, Fifth street, near the U. S. Custom House, where they will operate till a permanent business place is ready. They are prepared to fill orders for furniture and all kinds of bedding, including first-class hair mattresses and the celebrated woven wire mattress, children's perambulators, &c., &c. Being desirous of settling up their affairs speedily, any one indebted to this firm is requested to call and give them the use of their means.

TRIP TO CLATSOP

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

If this is not encroaching, we would like to give a brief description of a flying visit to Clatsop. Saturday, August 9th, immediately after the arrival of the Dixie Thompson at Astoria, we, the orator from McGoughlin Slough and your correspondent, stepped on board the Mary Bell, and placed ourselves under the wing of Capt. Fisher, who soon landed us safe and sound at Skipanon, where a Concord coach and four-in-hand were in readiness to transfer us to our destination. By the careful and skillful manipulations of Mr. Engres, the driver, we were shaken as mildly and dealt with as gently as the route would admit; and in a little over two hours arrived at the Seaside House. Mr. Dexter, the gentlemanly landlord, received us with a smile unassumed, and in such an affable manner that we, at once, became comfortably happy. It was but a moment's work for Senor Franklin to remove the dust from our outer garments, and by the application of a little cold water we were able to open our eyes, to some extent. We were then ushered into a snug, neat little apartment, where Mr. Dexter prepared a tonic to remove the dust from our throats. We then became happy. Several acquaintances gathered around, and we removed more dust, frequently tonicked, growing all the time more happy, while lunch was in preparation, to which we soon repaired and did ample justice. A description of this magnificent summer resort we are unable to give in writing, or even in a stump speech; one of our best efforts would fail to picture in such glowing colors as the beauty, comforts and surroundings of this Webfoot Eden would warrant. Therefore suffice it to say, it is a credit to Oregon; and if you want to have anything like even a faint idea, go and see for yourselves.

We, the orator and I, retired at a seasonable hour and in good condition. Next morning, after taking a little stroll among the bears, eagles, coons, monkeys and elk—which were all properly cared for and attended to—we then proposed to walk into the ocean. Not having suitable apparel to appear in proper shape before the ladies, who had collected on the beach for the purpose of walking and tumbling into the surf, we made known our wants to Mr. Dexter, who produced an extensive silk bathing suit. We, the orator and I, entered into the arrangement, and having it (as we thought) securely sinched, walked firmly towards the foaming billows, singing

> "On old Long Island's sea-girt shore,
> Many are the hours I whiled away, listening to the breakers."

(Here the orator received one below the belt that reversed his position and ruptured the puckering string. Things were soon repaired, however, and the bath was appreciated—it was delicious.)

A number of Astorians came over on a pleasure trip, and we, the orator and I, were invited to join them on their return. After shaking hands frequently, and removing the dust several times—dust that we anticipated finding on our way down—we, the orator and I, expressing ourselves in broken sentences to Mr. Dexter for his kind hospitality, &c., being thoroughly convinced that he knows how to keep a hotel. As the vehicle moved off the orator, in scarcely an audible tone, sang "On old Long Island sea-girt shore, (hic) many is the hour I whiled away."

Respectfully your ob't serv'ts,
I AND THE ORATOR,
From McGoughlin Slough.

Indignation meetings are being held throughout the Dominion, strongly censuring the Ministry for the sale of the Pacific Railway Charter, and the use of the proceeds for the purchase of constituents. Petitions to the Governor-General come in from all parts of the country urging him not to prorogue Parliament, which meets on the 13th, until the most searching investigation is made. McMuller has sued the Toronto Mail, the Government organ, for libel in connection with this matter.

Why linger in blissful ignorance? Why do you wander about seeking a place where they keep the largest and finest stock of Summer Clothing? Why pay high prices for goods when the fact has been long established that the great firm of J. KOHN & Co., 91 Front Street, sell Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods so cheap? They keep the best, they sell the cheapest, and what more can be asked?

Some people may become excited over the "terminus" of the Northern Pacific Railroad, on Puget Sound, but it does not disturb Beck & Waldman, corner Front and Washington streets, in the least, as they intend to pursue the usual course to their customers, and that is to sell goods at prices which will enable them with limited means to provide themselves with good clothing at a very small outlay of money. Parents should bring their children to this house for nice fitting suits.

Don't Forget It.—D. H. Hendee, photographer, who was one of the losers by the late fire, is now fixed up and ready for action at the same old place—corner of First and Morrison streets. Give him a call. Prices to suit the times.

Like Regulars on Dress Parade the teeth should always be scrupulously clean and free from blemish. Keep them in this condition with the incomparable Sozodont, and when they are veterans in the service, they will still be as "good as new."

A Household Remedy.—No family should be without some safe, valuable remedy for the cure of affections so universally prevalent as coughs, colds, sore throat, whooping cough and croup—some remedy, too, which can be relied upon as safe, sure and certain. Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry combines the [illegible].

WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 13, 1873.

CITY.

INSURANCE ADJUSTERS.—At no time in the history of this city has Portland been honored with the presence of so many representatives of the several insurance companies than at the present. Their presence here is explained by the recent calamitous fire, and their visit is purely one of business, the adjusting and [illegible] of claims preferred by losers [illegible] the several companies. The following [illegible] have been sent by the several insurance companies at San Francisco to adjust [illegible] and are now in the city:

C. V. D. Hubbard, Imperial, London Assurance and Northern.

H. Bigelow, Home Mutual and State Investment.

Henry Smith, Liverpool and London and Globe.

L. L. Brownwell, Phœnix, Home of New York and North British.

Mr. Hamilton, Commercial Union and Hamburg Bremen.

Mr. Rayley, Union.

George F. Grant, Resident Manager of the Oregon Branch of the Fireman's Fund, will [illegible] all [illegible] sustained by that company.

[illegible] CONCERT.—Arrangements for the holding of a grand vocal and instrumental [illegible], the proceeds of which are to be donated to the Relief Fund, are being rapidly made, and everything is progressing under the most flattering auspices. Last evening a grand vocal rehearsal was held at the music store of W. E. B[illegible]. This evening the [illegible] will [illegible] at the P[illegible] rooms. The [illegible] will be composed of the following [illegible]: S. Harris, violin; [illegible] and H. Thielsen, piano; [illegible] organ; G. W. Lowe, first cornet; Mr. Frank, violin; J. H. Brenner, violin; [illegible], flute; R. Yost, double bass; M. Peterson, second cornet; C. [illegible], double bass; Mr. [illegible], baritone. About thirty voices [illegible] to take part in the chorus, embracing all of the [illegible] amateur vocalists of the city. Mr. J. R. Wyatt will have charge of the vocal part of the entertainment, and Mr. S. Harris will be [illegible] of the orchestra.

P[illegible].—A dispatch was received yesterday by J. McCraken & Co., of this city, [illegible] General Geo. H. Williams, to the effect that Capt. Whyte, of the English [illegible], has been pardoned. It will be [illegible] that Capt. Whyte was arrested [illegible] ago and examined before U. S. Commissioner [illegible] R. Wilcox, on the charge of violating the passenger act, in bringing to this port [illegible] Hongkong more Chinamen than the [illegible] of the vessel would permit, allowing [illegible] cubic feet to each passenger. The [illegible] held the defendant to appear [illegible] the United States grand jury, to answer the [illegible]. In the meantime, a recommendation for pardon was forwarded to Washington [illegible] the result above stated.

[illegible] LODGE.—The hall of the Nonpareil Lodge, I. O. G. T., at the corner of Main [illegible], having been destroyed by [illegible] the members of that Lodge have [illegible] with Mr. J. S. Keller [illegible]. The Good [illegible] was not available for the [illegible] would be [illegible] to hold [illegible]. Until [illegible] the new [illegible] the Lodge will hold its [illegible] of Justice E. W. Ryan, [illegible] and Front streets.

[illegible]. The [illegible] Oregonian [illegible] ago from [illegible] Bay, [illegible] the first things which [illegible] did after arriving at San Francisco [illegible] fair and accomplished daughter of [illegible] the Oregonian called [illegible] away on a bridal tour [illegible] and his [illegible] bride. Capt. [illegible]. He carries with him [illegible] best [illegible] of his numerous friends.

[illegible] IMPROVEMENTS.—Notice will be [illegible] to the owners of property fronting or abutting upon that part of B street lying between North Thirteenth [illegible] the [illegible] of the city, as well [illegible] liable for a proportionate share of [illegible] with [illegible], that [illegible] improvements will be due [illegible] the date of the notice.

[illegible].—A large number [illegible] of Portland, showing the whole city and the "burnt district," were [illegible] a few days ago by Mr. Geo. F. Grant, [illegible] of the Fireman's Fund. These views [illegible]. Persons calling at the [illegible] can procure one of [illegible].

[illegible].—The [illegible] of the 12th [illegible] is celebrated at Grace Church [illegible] morning and evening. [illegible] will not [illegible] to [illegible]water Bay, as originally [illegible], but Rev. Mr. Hyland will go [illegible] and Rev. Mr. Burton will fill the pulpit at Grace Church, in Mr. Hyland's absence.

COURT AT ASTORIA.—Judge Upton went down [illegible] to Astoria on Monday, to hold the regular term of Circuit Court for Clatsop county. Court convened at that place yesterday [illegible] and will probably continue through the [illegible] week. As usual, a number of [illegible] are in attendance at the [illegible].

[illegible] AT [illegible].—The Astorian [illegible] the arrival at that place of the following: [illegible], C. W. Burrage, Wm. Strong, [illegible] W. W. Thayer, W. W. [illegible], O. H. THE [illegible] PENITENTIARY.—The Oregon [illegible] have the contract for the iron work to be used in connection with the Territorial Penitentiary now being built at Steilacoom. A large force of [illegible] are engaged in [illegible] cells, doors and balconies, and turning off other portions of the work.

NO COURT.—On Monday morning the U. S. [illegible] Court [illegible], but in consequence of the [illegible] of Judge M. P. Deady, court was adjourned by the Marshal until next Monday [illegible]. Yesterday morning the U. S. District Court convened, but was adjourned until the 18th inst.

[illegible].—The locomotive "John H. [illegible]," having met with considerable rough usage, has been hauled off for repairs. She is [illegible] an overhauling at the west side [illegible]. In the meantime the locomotive "[illegible]" is doing service in drawing the [illegible].

[illegible] engaged [illegible] in caulking a number of scows on the east side of the river, which have been [illegible]. The barges, which will be used in connection with the new dredger, are being repaired and put in a condition to render service.

MEETING OF RELIEF COMMITTEE.—A meeting will be held at Ladd & Tilton's bank on Friday [illegible] by the Relief Committee. Business of importance will be [illegible], and a full attendance is desired. All the sub-committees are requested to be present.

ON THE WAY HERE.—The barkentine Webfoot, Capt. Gage, sailed from San Francisco for this port on the 7th inst., with a full assorted [illegible]. The bark Superior sailed on the same day for Portland. Both will be due here in a few days.

MEETING OF SUFFERERS.—An adjourned meeting of the sufferers will be held this evening at the Court House. Several reports of committees previously appointed will be received. A general attendance is desired.

ADJOURNED.—The County Court adjourned on last Friday afternoon for the term, after a short term. But little county business was transacted, besides the auditing of the usual [illegible] of claims.

Billy Marshal has been appointed City Marshal of La Grande. It was tendered to M. P. [illegible]

ABOUT THE SMALLPOX.

[illegible] when it is known that it exists in our midst, it is but [illegible] an indefinable [illegible] of the public [illegible] that danger prevails. It is [illegible] disorder exists in Portland [illegible] that four deaths have [illegible] from the disorder. The exact [illegible] in the city is unknown; but they can be [illegible] at one-third less than what [illegible] we have heard [illegible] public complaint [illegible] and to a disregard on the part of the proper authorities and the public [illegible] the real facts. [illegible] it has been alleged that there is [illegible] to cover up and conceal the [illegible] and extent of the disease. So far as we have been able [illegible] such efforts made. It is [illegible] that the friends [illegible] who have been smitten with the [illegible] to keep from the ears of the public and the authorities, the unwelcome intelligence that would doubtless necessitate their removal to the pest house. But the law [illegible] the duties of the attending physician is plain and concise. Every physician who attends a case of smallpox [illegible] the Chief of Police [illegible] ascertaining the character of the disease, is subjecting himself to a heavy fine. When the Chief of Police is notified [illegible] of a case of smallpox (and that [illegible] no other authority,) it then becomes his imperative duty to remove the patient to the pest house or hospital at once, or if the case will not admit of removal without great jeopardy to the life of the [illegible] required to display or cause to be displayed a red or yellow flag in a conspicuous place so as to warn the public of the presence of the contagion. Discretionary powers are, to a certain extent, granted the Chief of Police, and public safety would certainly not demand the removal of a patient to the pest house, neither would common humanity sanction it, when the disease had reached a certain stage when such a removal would inevitably result fatally. However jealously guarded the public health and safety should be from contagion and infectious disorders, the emergency would scarcely justify the sacrifice of human life. Doubtless there have been instances where Chief Lappeus has not removed patients to the pest house for the very reason that the disease had so far advanced towards the crisis before he was officially notified, that it would be certain death to move the person. So far as we have been able to ascertain, whenever that officer has been timely notified he has complied with the law, and isolated the case. Many persons utter complaints which are groundless. We have here a loathsome and terrible disease. All must certainly unite in the desire that its further spread may be prevented; and that it may disappear totally from the city. To accomplish these desirable results, every citizen, as well as the authorities, should perform their duty. The law is plain and cannot be misconstrued. It is the duty of every physician to report cases at once. It is the duty of the Chief of Police to remove such cases as will admit to the pest house. If he does not, he should [illegible] wherever a case can be found. Should he fail to perform [illegible], then he should be severely censured, [illegible] from office. It is also the duty of [illegible] to report cases of which they [illegible] personal and positive knowledge to the [illegible]. If they do not, they are derelict [illegible] duties as regards the security of the [illegible]. The agitation of this subject by the press ought to be avoided further than the bare statement of the facts. No good can possibly result in creating unnecessary alarm. But while needless publicity ought not be given, and groundless fears ought not be aroused, there should be no effort to conceal the real facts. Let the danger be met fairly in the face. Let every precaution be exercised, and let every person do their duty in the matter. We have legal recourse. If officers and physicians are derelict in their duties, let every person who is cognizant of the fact report such omission or commission without delay, and have the law enforced to the letter. Idle reports which are circulated on the streets, ought not to be received without a large share of caution and incredulity. The exigencies of the times require action [illegible] those who fail to perform their duty, should be reported immediately. Complaints must be made, they should be [illegible] where means can be applied to right [illegible] ills and redress grievances complained of. In conjunction with the public, it is the duty of the press to aid the right and condemn the wrong, wherever they exist. When officers do their duty, they should be upheld; but when they fail or neglect to discharge the functions with which they are invested, they should be promptly censured. Parties knowing of such omissions or commissions and failing to report the same, should not be held blameless. These idle and, in many instances, wholly unreliable rumors, ought to be entirely discarded by our citizens, and every person should endeavor to become acquainted with the facts. Every real, and not imaginary, case of smallpox in the city would soon be ferreted out; and then a proper and safe course could be pursued in every instance. "Discard reports and know the truth," should be the motto of the public. This would enable precautions to be observed, and warn the public where real [illegible] existed. Every case could then be "corralled," or isolated, if this course was pursued, and the contagion would speedily disappear. Probably there are not more than half a dozen cases in Portland, but street rumor places the number far above that. The real danger consists in the uncertainty of the matter. Locate every case, and the danger can be in a great measure avoided. The press of the city have heretofore maintained a reticence on this subject through a desire to avoid unnecessary publicity, and we have made the above suggestions at the instance of many [illegible] complaints made from various quarters against the general management of the contagion.

RELIEF.

The Committee for Disbursing Aid to sufferers by the late fire desire that any person needing food, clothing, tools or other assistance for immediate relief, or to enable them to support themselves and families, will make their wants known.

COM. ON DISBURSEMENTS.

August 11th, 1873.

FINALLY DECIDED.

It is an old but true saying that a man is known by the books he reads and the company he keeps. This saying is illustrative of the great sewing machine war, in which nearly all the second-class machines have played [illegible] parts [illegible] making [illegible] loss. But our readers [illegible] the name of the world renowned Grover & Baker Sewing Machine [illegible] the above connection [illegible] has established the popularity of the Grover & Baker Sewing Machine [illegible]. It stands on its respective [illegible]. The machines make the [illegible] Stitch and will be [illegible] $10 per month. W. H. [illegible], Agent, 72 First street.

Henry K. Bond, of [illegible], was cured of spitting blood, soreness and weakness of the stomach, by the use of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment internally.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Fruit increasing in the markets.

The "Burnt District" is rapidly "Phoenixing."

The new dredger is lying opposite Smith's mill.

An unusual number of Californians in the city at present.

The Jane A. Falkinburg is discharging cargo at Flanders' wharf.

Several merchants have resumed business in the burnt district.

A new spark catcher has been placed on the smoke stack of the Gov. Grover.

Anders & Rowe sent a big lot of fruits to Sitka on the steamer Gussie Telfair.

The bark Northumbria, from this port, arrived at Queenstown on the 24th ult.

Professor Fowler, who was here a few weeks ago, will be at Jacksonville next Monday.

The brig Orient is on the way to this port from San Francisco, and may be expected next Thursday.

The musicians who will take part in the coming grand concert are rehearsing at the Progress Club rooms.

Mr. W. Aschenheim, grocer and fruit dealer, has just received a choice lot of delicious Oregon peaches—the first of the season.

Several Portlanders visited Vancouver on Monday. They saw sights after their return to the city, having lost considerable rest.

A dispatch was received from San Francisco yesterday to the effect that 128 immigrants had taken passage on the steamer now due here.

The call for the OREGONIAN was unprecedented. An edition of more than a thousand extra copies of last week's issue was exhausted within 36 hours after publication.

The moonlight excursion given under the auspices of the Vancouver Library Association on the steamer Oneatta to this city, on Monday evening, was a very pleasant affair.

An exchange is guilty of the following: "At an Oregon baby show a disappointed mother snapped a revolver under the nose of one of the judges, and her husband is after the other two." That proposition is too extremely thin for the average Oregon reader.

COMMITTEE ON PLAN OF ACTION.

The Committee on Plan of Action, appointed by the meeting of sufferers by the late fire assembled in the parlor of Ladd & Tilton's bank yesterday at 11 A. M.

Present, L. F. Grover, W. S. Ladd, C. M. Carter, Eugene Semple and Geo. L. Curry. Absent, J. N. Dolph.

On motion of Mr. Grover, Mr. Curry was chosen Chairman, and on motion of Mr. Ladd Mr. Semple was chosen Secretary.

The members of the Committee on Finance of the same meeting, several of whom were present, were invited to join in the discussion.

The different questions submitted to the committee were considered at length by those present, and the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That this Committee as a plan of action recommend the persons holding property in the burnt district to assemble and appoint a committee to visit San Francisco or the East and ascertain the feasibility of negotiating long loans on real estate at reasonable interest for the purpose of rebuilding the burnt district with permanent buildings. That said committee be composed of leading land owners in the burnt district, to be sustained by letters from the Governor of the State and the banks and leading business men of the city of Portland.

Thompson, Esq., of this city, and Mr. Sturgis, who is expected to arrive by the incoming steamer. They will go over the road north of Kalama in a day or two.

[illegible] of Wells, Fargo & Co., John J. Valentine, General Superintendent of the same company; Jos. Sheppard, [illegible] of the United States Express [illegible] and [illegible] Gamble, Superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

It comprises a [illegible] faithful and [illegible] of the unrivaled scenery of [illegible] and Washington Territory, in thirty-two large views. Wherever exhibited the panorama has won the highest encomiums of the [illegible] and met with the most flattering public consideration. We shall confidently expect an overwhelming House on the occasion of the first exhibition of Reed's Panorama.

TRIP TO CLATSOP.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

If this is not encroaching, we would like to give a brief description of a flying visit to Clatsop. Saturday, August 9th, immediately after the arrival of the Dixie Thompson at Astoria, we, the orator from McGoughlin Slough and your correspondent, stepped on board the Mary Bell, and placed ourselves under the wing of Capt. Fisher, who soon landed us safe and sound at Skipanon, where a Concord coach and four-in-hand were in readiness to transfer us to our destination. By the careful and skillful manipulations of Mr. Engres, the driver, we were shaken as mildly and dealt with as gently as the route would admit; and in a little over two hours arrived at the Seaside House. Mr. Dexter, the gentlemanly landlord, received us with a smile unassumed, and in such an affable manner that we, at once, became comfortably happy. It was but a moment's work for Senor Franklin to remove the dust from our outer garments, and by the application of a little cold water we were able to open our eyes, to some extent. We were then ushered into a snug, neat little apartment, where Mr. Dexter prepared a tonic to remove the dust from our throats. We then became happy. Several acquaintances gathered around, and we removed more dust, frequently tonicked, growing all the time more happy, while lunch was in preparation, to which we soon repaired and did ample justice. A description of this magnificent summer resort we are unable to give in writing, or even in a stump speech; one of our best efforts would fail to picture in such glowing colors as the beauty, comforts and surroundings of this Webfoot Eden would warrant. Therefore, suffice it to say, it is a credit to Oregon; and if you want to have anything like even a faint idea, go and see for yourselves.

We, the orator and I, retired at a seasonable hour and in good condition. Next morning, after taking a little stroll among the bears, eagles, coons, monkeys and elk—which were all properly cared for and attended to—we then proposed to walk into the ocean. Not having suitable apparel to appear in proper shape before the [illegible], who had collected on the beach for the purpose of walking and tumbling into the surf, we made known our wants to Mr. Dexter, who produced an extensive silk bathing suit. We, the orator and I, entered into the arrangement, and having it (as we thought) securely sinched, walked firmly towards the foaming billows, singing

"On old Long Island's sea-girt shore,
Many are the hours I whiled away, listening to the breakers."

(Here the orator received one below the belt that reversed his position and ruptured the puckering string. Things were soon repaired, however, and the bath was appreciated—it was delicious.)

A number of Astorians came over on a pleasure trip, and we, the orator and I, were invited to join them on their return. After shaking hands frequently, and removing the dust several times that we anticipated finding on our way down—we, the orator and I, expressing ourselves in broken sentences to Mr. Dexter for his kind hospitality, &c., being thoroughly convinced that he knows how to [illegible]. As the vehicle moved off the orator, in scarcely an audible tone, sang "On old Long Island's sea-girt shore, (hic) many is the hour I whiled away."

Respectfully your ob't serv'ts,

I AND THE ORATOR,

From McGoughlin Slough.

Indignation meetings are being held throughout the Dominion [illegible] censuring the Ministry for the sale of the Pacific Railway Charter, and the use of the proceeds for the purchase of [illegible]. Petitions to the Governor [illegible] in all parts of the country urging him not to prorogue Parliament, which meets on the 13th, until the most searching investigation is made. Mr. Muller has sued the Toronto Mail, the Government organ, for libel in connection with this matter.

Why [illegible] in blissful ignorance. Why do you [illegible] place where they keep the largest and [illegible] stock of Summer Clothing? Why pay high prices for goods when the fact has been long [illegible] that the [illegible] firm of J. KOHN & Co., 81 Front St., sell Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods [illegible]. They keep the best, they sell the cheapest, and what more can be asked?

Some people may become excited over the "terminus" of the [illegible] Pacific Railroad, on Puget [illegible], but it does not disturb [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible], in the [illegible] as they [illegible] and that is to sell goods at [illegible] which will [illegible] with good clothing at a very small outlay of [illegible] their children to this [illegible].

[illegible].—D. H. Hendee, photographer, who was one of the [illegible] by the late fire, is now fixed up and ready for action at the same old place [illegible] of First and Morrison streets. Give him a call. Prices to suit the times.

Like Regulars on Dress Parade the teeth should always be scrupulously clean and free from blemish. Keep them in this state with the incomparable [illegible] when they are veterans in the service, they will still be as good as new.

A WONDERFUL REMEDY.—No family should be without [illegible] is for the cure of affections so [illegible] as coughs, colds, sore throat, whooping cough and croup—the remedy, too, which can be relied upon as safe, sure and certain. DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY [illegible].

WEDNESDAY MORNING AUGUST 13 1873

A QUEST

BY LOUISE CHANDLER MOULTON

All in the summer [illegible]
When sea and sky were bright,
And radiantly the sunset
Went forth to meet the night

My love and I were sailing
Into the shining west
To find some Happy Island
Some Paradise of rest

We steered where sunset splendor
Turned into gold the shore
The rocks behind its brightness
Were cruel as before.

Within the [illegible],
But there the whirlpools be
Not there the Happy Islands,
Not [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sea.

Toward the deep mid ocean
Tides ran and swift winds blow
It must be there the islands
Await the longing view

Their shores are soft with verdure
Their skies forever fair
And always is the fragrance
Of blossoms on the air

I set our sail to seek them
But then my love drew back
Not yet the night is chilly—
I fear that unknown track.

So home we sailed at twilight.
To the familiar shore
Turned from the golden glory,
To live the old life o'er

We ll make no further ventures—
For timid is my love—
Until [illegible] [illegible]
Are sent us from above.

Then to the deep mid-ocean
Though we reluctant sail,
We'll find our Happy Islands,
And joys that cannot fail

THE LIGHT BRIGADE.

TRUTH ABOUT THE FAMOUS CHARGE INTO THE MOUTH OF HELL

At last we have a historical blunder gracefully corrected and a handsome defense of a brave soldier whose name has been under a cloud It has been popularly [illegible] that Captain Louis Nolan, of Lord Raglan's staff being an impetuous soldier, [illegible] misconstrued the actual [illegible] ing of an order which he carried into an authorization of the senseless sacrifice of the Light Brigade, and that his only excuse was that he was the first man killed in the charge. Launce Poynts in the Galaxy, after reviewing the topography of the battle-field and the position of the forces, says:

As it was matters stood thus when Nolan left Raglan, bearing the fourth order The Russians were clustered on two hills the English and French cavalry stood looking on, Lucan was in his usual nervous, frigable state, when the gallop of a horse was heard A tall, slender young officer with a trim figure and black moustache, was coming down a steep [illegible] at full [illegible] with a white envelope stuck in his belt, and every eye was on him in a moment.

It was Captain Nolan in his scarlet shell jacket, a little forage cap on one side of his dark curls, his face full of joy and eagerness

An audible whisper [illegible] through the ranks "[illegible] come! Nolan's the boy that ll show us the way to move." For Nolan was well-known and universally [illegible]

In another moment he had dashed up and [illegible] handed his letter to Lord Lucan The cavalry general tore it open with nervous [illegible] characteristic of every movement of his lordship. When he [illegible] d it over his countenance changed Then his lordship broke out [illegible]

"[illegible] sir, what can he mean? With the little force at our command we can barely hold our own much less advance." It is perfect [illegible] How can we [illegible]?"

Nolan's eye began to blaze He had just come from high ground where the whole Russian position could be seen at a glance knowing that his order contemplated the doubling back of the Russian columns and saving the guns in the redoubts, he was impatient of the pr[illegible] [illegible] objection of this captious old man

In a stern distinct tone he said to Lord Lucan

"Lord Raglan's [illegible] are that the cavalry should attack immediately

"Attack sir!" cried Lucan angrily 'Attack what? what guns, sir?"

Nolan threw his head back indignantly and pointed to the Causeway ridge where the Russians were busily at work trying to haul away the captured guns The group was standing at the right of the entrance of the north valley

"There my Lord is your enemy, he said "and there are your guns.'

The captain forgot that he was talking to an excited and impracticable man Wrong headed Lucan chose to fancy that he pointed to the [illegible] of the valley, and with all the obstinacy of his nature kept to the error

'Very well, sir, very well," he said angrily. "The order shall be obeyed I wash my hands of it."

He wheeled his horse and trotted off to where Cardigan sat in front of his brilliant lines gnawing his gray moustache and chafing over his inaction

Then said wrong-headed Lucan,

"Very well, my Lord" was all he said Then turning to his staff "The brigade will advance," he said quietly

[illegible] time Nolan, after his sharp passage of arms with the division commander, had ridden off to the right brigade, himself, where he was [illegible] fully talking to his sworn comrade and friend Captain Morris of the 17th Lancers. Now that he had [illegible] obtained his position as mouth-piece of the commander-in-chief against the impudent fault finding of Lucan, he felt happy His beloved cavalry was to be launched at last on this glorious mission against the Causeway Ridge, and already D'Allonville was preparing to assault the other flank of the Russians

Who can wonder that enthusiastic Nolan told Morris that he was going to see the brigade through the charge? It was his privilege to do so, and his heart beat high with hope Little did he know of the [illegible] of pig-headed stupidity natural to the two members of the English aristocracy who respectively commanded and led that charge.

A clear, sharp voice was soon heard in front of the brigade now formed in three lines, Lord Lucan rode away to the "Heavies," and Nolan galloped [illegible] to the rear to the left of the brigade as the [illegible] cried

"Light brigade forward—trot—march!"

In a moment the front line was away, as steady as if on parade at a rapid trot following an erect gentleman mounted on a chesnut thoroughbred and wearing tight scarlet trowsers and a blue fur trimmed jacket the front a perfect blaze of gold

The erect gentleman was as slender in figure [illegible] alert in gesture as a boy of twenty and yet that man was fifty seven years old and the Earl of Cardigan himself.

"Lord Cardigan you will attack the Russians in the valley

The earl dropped his sword in salute.

"Certainly my Lord but allow me to point out to you that there is a battery in front a battery on each flank, and the ground is covered with Russian riflemen

"I can't help it, said Lucan, snappishly "it is Lord Raglan's positive order that the light brigade is to attack the enemy We have no choice but to obey

Then Cardigan bowed his head

But hardly had they started when Nolan uttered a cry of astonishment and rage

"Good God! are the fools going to charge down the valley? he shouted

Then, setting spurs to his horse, he dashed out of his place and galloped madly across the front, waving his sword

"Where are you going my lord? he shouted "That is not Lord Raglan's order Change front to right This way! This way! The batteries on the ridge"

Lord Cardigan was as hot-tempered in his way as Lord Lucan The audacity of an officer presuming to cross his front was enough [illegible] that other to address his brigade was an additional insult He spoke not a word but pointed grimly forward with his sword [illegible] Nolan's words were lost in the thunder of hoofs and all that was seen was his figure crossing the front and wildly gesticulating pointing to Causeway Ridge

Then the Russian batteries opened There was a flash a boom and a second flash in the air a little cloud of white smoke and a loud bang! as the first shell burst in the face of the trotting line. Lord Nolan threw up his arm with a fearful shriek and fell back in his saddle stone dead struck through the heart With a low groan of rage the rushing horsemen quickened their pace and dashed on at a wild gallop, into the valley of death

The secret of Balaklava perished with Nolan

During the last six weeks the money market throughout almost the entire Union has been reported as unusually easy Exports have been larger while imports have diminished and bank reserves have been filling up Foreign nations are again investing in our bonds, and the payment of the Alabama claims has aided in promoting a general return of confidence in the East.

There has already been a great deal said by the people and through the press about the advisability of so modifying financial relations on this coast that all the States in the Union may be assimilated in this respect to that of the General Government and the question is still agitating the public mind to a considerable extent. The San Francisco Journal of Commerce argues the affirmative of the proposition to so modify matters that all business be done on a legal tender or greenback basis and claims that the demand for such action prevails to an extent which we are hardly prepared to believe. It lays down the proposition that the legal tender should be the same all over the Union whether it be gold silver or paper and claims that any different policy serves to render commercial relations between the States unreliable and uncertain and invests them to a certain extent with the character of gambling Our importer of New York, Boston or Philadelphia goods watches the greenback market with the same anxiety that a stock broker does the rise and fall of Belcher or Crown Point. If greenbacks fall the [illegible] here makes a large profit while the chances are that the Eastern manufacturer is a heavy loser If on the contrary they rise the importer on this coast is exposed to serious loss while the Eastern manufacturer earns a speculative gain And in order to guard against this, special arrangements have to be made. It is nearly absolutely certain that a return to specie payments can not be yet effected for many years, hence the greater need that this coast should adopt the Government system It would take some time to get to working order under the new state of things and probably some inconvenience would be [illegible] thereby but the benefits would far outweigh them The principal one would be the increased facilities for [illegible] with Utah Montana Idaho Colorado etc. with the business men of commercial centers further East We could sell cheaper to them and our manufacturers would run no risk of loss on the difference that might happen to subsist between gold and greenbacks

The [illegible] Iron Market.

The Pittsburg Commercial of July 24th says

The pig iron market has assumed a new and encouraging feature within the past week There has been considerable inquiry for pig metal and although prices have not recovered to any perceptible degree yet there is much better feeling on all hands.

July—The [illegible] for refined bar iron is quite limited and prices lack firmness. Holders seem anxious to move [illegible] but we hear of no sales below £90 Late mail advices from England note a decline in the price of bar iron Well known brands can be bought at £14 and £14 10s, and second class brands at about £13. Even at this price it can not be imported to sell at a profit at present prices here. An extract from the Birmingham Post will be found below, giving valuable information in regard to the English market

"There is a slightly improved feeling in the market for pig iron, with a little better demand. Prices are fully as firm as last week [illegible] the [illegible] be bought at [illegible] We hear of sales of [illegible]

[illegible] at [illegible] and No 1 at [illegible] Colness at [illegible] Charcoal at [illegible]

The Wool Clip—How to Save.

The [illegible] of the region [illegible] the line of the [illegible] Central Railroad, says.

[illegible] of the wool has been marketed, and [illegible] of the buyers have stopped buying, packed their wool and shipped it East. Forty cents was the average price as near as can be ascertained The range was from 35c to 45c. None but very superior wools brought over 40c. The buyers all report this clip at least five per cent. better in quality than that of last year The [illegible] of this improvement was that the continued cold weather kept back the washing so late that the wool-growers were forced to shear their sheep as soon as the wool was dry (the most of them two and three days after the washing) not giving the usual time of two and three weeks to load the wool with grease and dirt, as the spring [illegible] had to be [illegible] as soon as the sheep were [illegible]

Where the sheep have been washed at all in Oregon the same complaint is made that wool-growers allow the sheep to run too long after the washing and had the advice of [illegible] as [illegible] in the above extract been followed in our State the past spring there is no doubt in our mind that wool growers would have been largely the gainers by the operation
